

Transforming Society through Contemplation, Justice, and Compassion

Sister Kathleen Ogrin lives compassion by being a presence for young families raising children. In her ministry as director of Holy Family Learning Center, she helps find financial assistance for struggling parents, especially single mothers, the unemployed and those with medical problems. She tries to be a voice for justice and encourages the children's involvement with social outreach. Kathy urges parents of her students to create a contemplative space in their homes for prayer since she personally knows the need to be centered in prayer to fulfill her ministry.
